

BADEN-POWELL, FOUNDER OF SCOUTING

Lord Baden-Powell was the founder of the Boy Scouts of the world. The first scout stamp was in honor of Baden-Powell as a young British officer at the Siege of Mafeking (South Africa).

Seven years earlier, the Boy Scout program was originated by Sir Robert Baden-Powell of England. It was here that Colonel Baden-Powell defended the town of Mafeking against great odds and much hardship. After a siege of 219 days, he became a victorious hero by using the young boys in Mafeking for postal and messenger service. The young men were led by a youth known as Cadet Sergeant-Major Warner Goodyear.

Years later "B-P" referred to Goodyear as his first Boy Scout. Here the founder of the scout movement realized the interest and capabilities of youth in a program of camping skills, first aid and service to others.

To this day Lord Baden-Powell appears on more stamps throughout the free world than any other man. Issued for various events in world scouting, his picture appears somewhere on every item in this exhibit.
